Council adopts urgency, anti-graffiti ordinance

by Lindy Magner

To be under 18 and in possession of spray paint, markers or etching tools is now illegal in the city of Lemon Grove.

At its Tuesday meeting, the city council adopted an urgency ordinance which puts in place penalties for those caught defacing property with graffiti or apprehended with graffiti implements while on public property such as parks, or private property without the consent of the owner.

The ordinance also requires that sellers of spray paint, markers and other items associated with graffiti application be kept either behind the counter or in a locked cabinet.

Fines or other penalties which a business would incur for violations are not detailed in the ordinance.

Adoption of the ordinance comes about nine months after business owner Jerry May first brought his concerns to the council over the graffiti he and other shop owners along Broadway were suffering on a regular basis.

Mayor Brian Cochran addressed May's concerns by forming a Citizens Advisory Committee which met to develop an ordinance as well as other anti-graffiti measures such as the recent community paint-out.

Having "urgency" status, the ordinance will take effect immediately. Penalties for violation of this provision include a $1,000 fine and/or one year of incarceration for misdemeanor offenses. For damage over $5,000, the offense would be considered a felony, subject to harsher punishment.

In addition, minors will be required to perform 24 to 80 hours of supervised community service, and at least one parent will be required to be present for at least half of the community service duties assigned. And, parents/guardians would be liable for damages done to property.

Also, property owners can be issued notices by the city to remove graffiti on their property within three days, if the city determines that the graffiti is a "public nuisance.

If owners fail to comply, the city will then claim the right to remove the graffiti, and attempt to obtain owner consent to do so. If an owner refuses to cooperate, a hearing will be set to determine if the city can enter the property and remove the graffiti and pass on the cost of eradication to the owner.

The "retro-fitting" or changing of a property so that it is less of a magnet for graffiti will be required of property owners who receive abatement notices and hearings at least twice during the same year.

A $3,000 limit is set on the property improvements which the city can require of the owner.

It was a ground-breaking day for Home Depot

Last Thursday, city officials donned hardhats and took up shovels as they ceremoniously broke ground for the $16.7 million Home Depot store scheduled for completion in about six months.

Once the trucks took a break from grading the property, Mayor Brian Cochran began the ceremony with a few comments to a crowd of about 30, mostly city staff and chamber of commerce representatives.

"This is the greatest achievement in our redevelopment," he said about the project in which the city's redevelopment agency began in fall of 1991, with feasibility studies. The agency assembled about 20 parcels of property bordered by Broadway, North Avenue and Buena Vista Avenue - including two small apartments, seven single-family dwellings, 11 businesses and a 36-unit trailer park - into a 10.4 acre site for the store.

Property acquisition and relocation of residents and businesses cost the redevelopment agency $11.5 million.

Cochran noted that in its first year of operation, the store is expected to generate $100,000 in property tax and about $450,000 in sales tax, employing about 150 workers.

Dan Kneip, Home Depot district manager, stated that this 128,000 square-foot store would be one of the largest in the nation, and would be the only San Diego store to have a covered nursery. Also, this store will house the company's district office, he said.

For Collins General Contractors, this will be the seventh of 11 Home Depot stores it has constructed in the county.

Mayoral rotation by seniority rescinded with new resolution

Though at its previous meeting, the City Council voted to adopt a rotation system by which council members would take their turn in the mayoral seat based on seniority, at Tuesday's meeting, another vote rescinded that resolution and adopted an alternative one.

Councilman Jerry Legerton authored the new resolution which keeps the two-year mayoral term of the previously adopted resolution but discards the "rotation by seniority" clause.

Introducing the replacement resolution, Legerton stated that he felt the council had moved too swiftly at its previous meeting, and that this was a "better resolution" designed with more thought.

"The old resolution takes away the opportunity of future councils to appoint their own mayor. With this one, they are free to choose the criteria for selection, and won't be limited to seniority," he said.

Mayor Brian Cochran, who voted for the replacement resolution, stated that though he was "philosophically opposed" to any term limit, he preferred the newer resolution.

It gets to the crux of the matter, which is the rotating of the mayor," he said.

Councilwoman Heiserman also voted for the new resolution; Burns and Councilman Craig Lake opposed it.

"I don't believe a resolution change tonight is prudent; you lose stability in the public eye if you change resolutions from

Showcase Writers Club still going strong

by Lindy Magner

In the 42 years since it first began as an offshoot of a creative writing class, more has stayed the same than has changed for the Showcase Writers Club.

Though in the late 1960s it changed its name from the La Mesa Writers Club to Showcase Writers, and has changed its meeting place several times, it is still dedicated to fostering the love of writing, according to Mary Giacinto, club president.

Of about 60 in the club, Giacinto has been a member the longest. She recalls the early days when she first found her place at Showcase.

"When I joined - sometime in the early to mid '60s - everyone was much older than I was, and I was the darling of the bunch. It was such an honor to belong," she said, noting that in about three years, she was elected to her first of many terms as club president.

The group today still consists mostly of senior citizens, and though the club's scope has been expanded to writers countywide, most are East County residents.

She explained that the club was formed by La Mesan Edith Boutwell, who, in addition to teaching a creative-writing class, published the California Senior Citizen, a local newspaper.

Early meeting notices in newspapers told of the club having various genre "departments," including one for writing musical scores, as an article in the La Mesa Scout from 1951, attests:

"How to writer a musical score for publication will be discussed by Elinor A. Webb and guest, June Hill. They will play several of their compositions. Mrs. Hill has one of her compositions recorded with RCA Victor."

Giacinto learned about the club through a neighbor, who "made it sound so good."

She recounted that after her introduction to the club and to Boutwell, she wrote a few articles for the Senior Citizen, and from there, her love for writing, as well as interviewing, blossomed.

"She got me a press card, and I was able to interview Jimmy Durante and other celebrities who would come to Las Vegas, where my husband was working," she said. "Edith got people to believe in themselves," she added.

Later, Giacinto wrote columns, including "Girl Scout Chatter" for the Lemon Grove Review and "A Mother's Voice" for a religious newspaper.

She said that though she was

League of Women Voters invites Jacob and Madrid

Less money signals change. Will this impact the quality of life for East County residents? The League of Women Voters has invited county Board of Supervisor Dianne Jacob and La Mesa Mayor Art Madrid to speak on "Providing Public Services on Reduced Revenues - Can It Be Done?"

The program, sponsored by the Grossmont-Cajon Valley LWV, will be on Saturday, June 5, 10 a.m. to noon, at the El Cajon Library Community Room, 200 E. Lexington Ave. Refreshments will be served at 9:45 a.m.

Cities and the county contemplate new alliances as they struggle to deliver public services such as police, fire protection, libraries and parks which are targeted for cuts. "The community is concerned about the possible proposals to change, modify or reform the relationships between the County of San Diego and the incorporated cities," says Local Study Director Anita Reith, who has arranged this program.

For more information call 444-0600. The public is invited.

City's summer weed-abatement program begins

The Lemon Grove Fire Department is now activating the city's annual weed abatement program which necessitates owners to clear property of overgrown weeds, rubbish or other materials before the fire season begins.

According to the department, notices to clean premises will be mailed out this month to all owners/occupants or agents with potential fire hazards, reminding them to clear lots, embankments, yards and to maintain a minimum 30-foot break next to buildings and roadways.

Skillman promoted to VP at local Union Bank branch

Ronald J. Skillman, manager of Union Bank's Lemon Grove Office, has been named a vice president.

Skilllman served as a commercial loan officer in the Gardena, western Los Angeles and Kearny Mesa offices.

He was promoted to assistant vice president and manager of the Pacific Beach office in 1984, and was named manager of the Lemon Grove office in 1990.

A native and resident of San Diego, Skillman attended San Diego Mesa Junior College and San Diego State University.

Wildlife rummage sale June 5

The First Annual Project Wildlife Rummage Sale will be held Saturday, June 5, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., at 8555 Golden Avenue.

This non-profit volunteer organization is hoping to raise funds for the care, rehabilitation and release of native wildlife in San Diego County. Hundreds of Project Wildlife members have been donating used items for this rummage sale to insure bargains for the general public.

The project's education team will be on hand with education animals so everyone will have a chance to see some of our wild neighbors. A bake sale will be featured, as well as lots of Project Wildlife animal collage shirts, mugs, and license-plate holders.

"With the annual baby season now in full swing, funds are in even greater demand than usual. During this time, Project Wildlife receives approximately 7,000 baby birds and mammals. Money raised will be used for food, caging and medical supplies for the wildlife," said Dawn Miller, organizer of this benefit. "We hope lots of people will show up in support of native wildlife."

For more information about the sale, call 236-0842.

Zero Tolerance

Fresh from the two-day training seminar on the Safe Communities Action Group project, it took two trips from the car to bring in all of the handout materials.

A fast-paced and dizzying outpouring of information showed those of us who attended what the problems are, what can be done, and was very inspiring. Most of the graphics and the data was generated from the Los Angeles scene and contrasted with our situation in Lemon Grove; it was frightening.

The message was very clear, however, that it portends of things to come if we do not act promptly. It focused mostly on gangs, graffiti, and the youth who are so totally involved. A gang is defined as a group who has a name, a style of dress (uniform), a qualified membership, and one where there are certain identifying symbols, logos, purposes for being, and proclaimed goals. Sounds like the Boy Scouts, doesn't it?

However, the further stipulation that a member "actively participates in a pattern of criminal gang activity, and who willfully promotes, furthers, or assists in any felonious criminal conduct by members of the "gang." This quote makes a clear distinction from the many other fine upstanding organizations that exist in society.

The many types of gangs, and their varied methods of identifying themselves has filled volumes, and they change almost hourly. There is also a very wide distinction between the very serious criminal organizations and the youth "taggers" which produce the vast amount of the graffiti that we see plastered over our walls nowadays. It is a certainty that the "youthful taggers" (boys will be boys) will not fail to graduate to the upper levels of violence and vandalism if they continue unabated.

There are many reasons for our youth to turn to these renegade groups and they begin at a very early age, and often in the home. The schools, the workplace, and the "hood" in general bring the peer pressure, the influences of film and TV, and the example of we adults, to bear upon the way these precious twigs are bent. It would seem that we are so preoccupied with pointing fingers of blame at each other, that we are missing the boat with our children's entire future lives. There are many things that we can do, and we should. I was proud of our city in that we had the biggest turnout of all communities at the training session. Thirteen, who represented various parts of our little community, were attentively present.

Our proudest "brag" was the recent graffiti "paint out" that was so successful and cleaned up our town for a little while. We now know that we must continue that effort, probably on a quarterly schedule.

The many other options run the gamut from a "big brother" relationship with the at risk youth, to "zero tolerance." The latter is an absolute disallowance of the bringing of weapons, the doing of vandalism, and the infliction of harm to others in the schools. On the way to school, during school hours, and until arriving at home, is the "zero" zone for the above. Anyone who is guilty of these, will be arrested, incarcerated or punished. The group was unanimous in endorsing this hard-line position. This is a start, and the "magnificent 13" will continue the fight, and be expanding upon it in the future.

When I was a youth, the punishment that I got at school, was nothing compared to what I got when I got home. I believe that this kept me on a straight and narrow path, all of my life. Why not again?

Helix Water District poster contest awards announced

Over 200 students have "Discovered California's Water" by participating in Helix Water District's 1993 Poster Contest. The annual event is open to elementary school children within the Helix Water District. First place winner, Michelle Yu, Santa Sophia Academy; second place winner Gareth Geraty, Flying Hills School; third place winner Christina Henderson, Spring Valley Middle School; and finalists, Jeffrey Kirschenman, Fletcher Hills School; Andrew Hernandez, La Mesa Dale School; Jessica Merschtina, Parkway Middle School; Jenalyn Quevedo, Our Lady of Grace; Bree Dreaden, Kempton Street School; Sara Ann Magruder, Parkway Middle School; and Natalie Spilger, Fletcher Hills School were awarded their prizes on May 26, at the district's Board meeting.

Each water poster creatively displayed the importance of Southern California's precious water supply. The 10 winning posters will now be submitted for possible inclusion in Metropolitan Water District's 1994 Water Awareness calendar.

Two Helix High School seniors, Stacy DeLevi and Jennifer Woolley, have also discovered the importance of special districts in their local community.

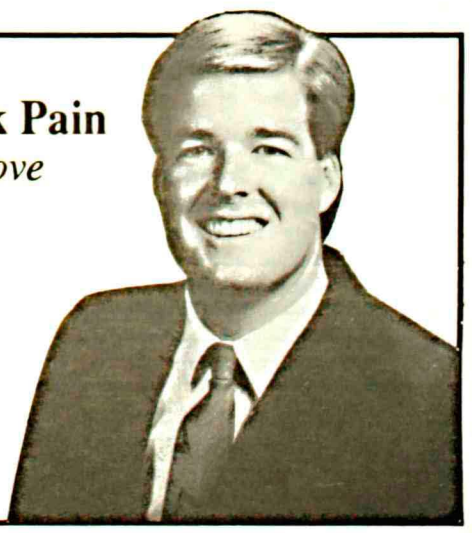

Stacy DeLevi, an advanced placement scholar, with many accomplishments and activities, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the San Diego Chapter of the California Special Districts Association. The scholarship program was based on students' academic achievement, community involvement, financial need, and their knowledge of special districts.

Jennifer Woolley, another outstanding Helix High School senior who has volunteered over 420 hours at Grossmont Hospital, has also been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Helix Water District.

Both students hope to further their education in the medical field.

Looking around ... by Paul Treske

Having had all of my thoughts and energies narrowly confined to a hospital room for the better part of two weeks, I'm just beginning to look around again at the outer world - seeking the momentous differences that have occurred during my absence. Perhaps I had expected something more dramatic, but I've got to say that very little new has happened.

• President Clinton continues to take a beating and, although he won his first crucial budgetary test in the House by six votes the other day, there are, everywhere, predictions that the Senate will "cut him off at the knees," leaving his a "lost" presidency after only four months. Daily job-rating polls are taken, each vying with the others to show a lower figure. In short, things couldn't be worse.

• On the other hand, Bosnia seems, magically, to have fallen off of the national agenda. Of course, the rape, pillage and murder are undoubtedly continuing, but we all appear to have agreed not to pay attention anymore.

• Unfortunately, not so with the so-called "gays in the military" issue; which, absurd as it may be, has developed a life of its own. Everytime a somewhat gentler word is spoken, Senator Nunn or Col. Peck or one of that ilk tells us that it most surely will bring about the total downfall of the United States. My inability to clearly see this must undoubtedly have something to do with my recent illness.

• Another creature yapping noisily around the fringes of my new world remains Ross Perot. Aside from hitting-up half the nation's population for $15 apiece and presenting no accounting for the cash, I can't see why he remains in the news. How many times you can explain all of the nations woes by speaking of "getting under the hood," and continue to get press coverage, is a mystery.

In short, after opening my eyes and "looking around," I can't see a helluva lot of change while I was "out of it." All I can do is wonder: Is this good or is it bad?

basically a homemaker, raising 10 children, the club was an important "outlet" in her life.

In addition to writing articles, Giacinto writes poetry, with one of her humorous poems placing third several years ago in the club's annual contest.

For 27 years, the club has been hosting a writing contest in which county writers can enter in categories of fiction, poetry, children's stories and article-writing.

From the contest comes the club's main moneymaker - a publication which is a collection of the winning pieces and other writing selections.

On average, the contest draws about 350 manuscripts, which are then judged by local professional writers and teachers. The entry deadline this year is June 25.

Though most of the writers who enter the contest are not Showcase members, it's not uncommon for a good portion of the trophies to be won by club members.

For example, member Eleanor Kent has placed twice in the humorous poetry division, once for serious poetry, once for a children's story, and last year placed third for an "article division" entry.

Kent, a Spring Valley resident and retired credit department supervisor, learned about the club from a friend five years ago, and has been going strong ever since.

She noted that what she writes depends on the mood she is in, though she finds humorous poetry comes easiest to her.

June Ward, a Lemon Grove resident who describes herself as being "70-something," explained that she has loved writing "as far back" as she can remember.

A two-year club member, she secured second-place in the article category in last year's competition.

"I write poetry and fiction; I try to stick to the truth, to what I know - it makes it easier to write when you do that," she said.

She noted that while in high school in her hometown of Washington, Iowa, her teacher took several of her articles written for a history class to the local newspaper, which published them.

"Oh, I've been writing letters forever; everyone always seemed to enjoy those," she said.

Ruby Becker, a retired Casa De Oro Elementary kindergarten teacher, joined the club about nine years ago, and soon after became one of the editors of the annual publication - a task which she has continued every year.

Though she considers herself mainly a writer of poetry and has placed in the club's contest with her humorous poetry, her attempts at writing children's stories and articles have won honorable mentions.

Everett Lucas, a neighbor of Becker, has been a club member for about six years, joining when Becker peaked his interest.

Though he won an honorable mention last year for his fiction, his favorite writing is logging his travels.

"I like to do travel logs - I can relive my travels by reading back what I've written - it works better for me than photographs," he said.

"I don't do any poetry," he said with a laugh.

Letter to the community

I wasn't able to attend the ground-breaking ceremonies for the Home Depot project on Thursday, May 27 and that prompted me to write to you, my constituents, this article outlining my views on the accomplishment. I had an opportunity to do some research on the upcoming Alcohol Ordinance and felt that the importance of this ordinance warranted missing the ground breaking. I perceived the city would still be well-represented at this festive occasion by the Mayor, Mayor Pro-tem, Mayor Designate, along with fellow council members, and city staff so I opted to miss the ground-breaking ceremonies.

Even with the fear of tagging on to an overused cliche, I see the Home Depot project as the perfect example of an economic "Stimulus Strategy" for the people of Lemon Grove. Ths project achieved and will achieve many objectives.

First, the primary obstacle that had to be hurdled was the displacement of the current residences in the project area. This City Council was adamant that the people were not going to be victims or government takeover. Eminent domain was to be implemented with the prime directive being to pay the Lemon Grove citizens in the project area the best price legally possible for their property. I am proud to report that all of the displaced residents that I have talked to are very pleased with the outcome of their individual situation.

Second, when former Mayor Dorman presented this project as a study proposal to the Lemon Grove City Council, the project was to enhance economic growth for our town. Now, as the study has indicated, Home Depot will be an even greater benefit to the city coffers and citizens of Lemon Grove then originally anticipated. The city treasury will be increased by an estimated half million dollars a year. This equates to funds for fire, police, senior projects, recreation and a host of other worthwhile functions. Unfortunately, a year or so will pass before the funds will be available to our city. Nevertheless, in these times of budget cuts, knowing that there is a possibility of relief in the future is very reassuring.

Finally, a project the size of this one; in a town the size of Lemon Grove, will create, as Californian's like to say, an epicenter. That is to say, this business will bring in 150 people to work, live, shop and play in Lemon Grove. Home Depot will increase the desire for other businesses to locate in our fair city. The thousands of people that come to shop at Home Depot will also shop at other Lemon Grove businesses thus furthering our economic growth.

This exemplifies exactly what government is supposed to do in my opinion. Of the many terrific projects that have enhanced Lemon Grove under Mayor Dorman's reign, Home Depot is among the best of the projects. When government can assist private enterprise to build a facility that will perpetuate on the efforts of private citizens and when that project will benefit the economic stability of an entire city, that I believe, is the proper function of government and I am proud to have been a part of the Home Depot project for Lemon Grove.

From Where I Sit

Home alone 3

by Frank Andrews

We have known for several months of Mari's graduation from college at Chico. As soon as the actual date of the ceremonies was set we bought the airline ticket for her mother. With the senior's discount we could have included little ol' me in the much-planned weekend but it was too late to change now.

My wife does everything too early. Even for a doctor's appointment in La Mesa we leave an hour early just to sit in his office, adding to the usual long wait. I guess that's a good "wife" trait to always be early and is better than always being late.

So she packed her suitcase several times not knowing what to wear because the changing climate of Northern California. Also all ensembles had to be coordinated to be chic and fashionable. Friday, the big day, finally came after many phone calls to her destination.

Our "good neighbor" drove us to the airport two hours early just because my wife was afraid of some unforeseen delay. She had only one large suitcase, so the Red Cap could only tap her for a lonely buck.

Just a short time after the "good neighbor" and I returned home the phone rang announcing her safe arrival at Sacramento. She called from our son Dan's car phone in his new Ford Explorer.

Now I could settle in as a bachelor for a few days with all the benefits; no boss, eat what I want with no diet in mind, sleep when I wanted to and all I want, just feed my little dog, Calli. The biggest benefit of being "Home Alone" was the freedom of the bathroom. The one thing that seems to gripe most wives is the constant dispute over the toilet seat (up or down).

Can you imagine the freedom to leave the darn seat up at all times. I got to calculating as to how many times I had been raising and lowering the seat over the past 29 years. Now during my senior years and the more frequent use of the facility, the total up and downs was astronomical, but it was a form of exercise that I do need.

Except for our "good neighbor," who had me over for a most delicious steak, it was the usual - Grape-Nuts for breakfast, Top-Ramen for lunch, and a salad for dinner. I did get to eat a decent midnight snack - which is usually a no-no.

On Monday, about noon I received a call that they were at the Sacramento airport using Dan's car phone. She was just about ready to take off for the southern climes and would arrive in less than 1 1/2 hrs. My "good neighbor" was "chomping at the bit" waiting to drive me down to the San Diego Airport to retrieve my darling wife whom I missed so much (please don't tell her that).

Now instead of one suitcase she had four. Her son had bought her a new set of fashionable, designer's luggage. In one of the brand new suitcases Dan had put the big catfish that his mother had caught the night before in his little lake. It had been fileted and frozen solid. We fried it the following night for supper and it was delicious.

I'll have to admit the I'm not cut out to be a "home alone" and I appreciate all the good things that Willie Marie does for this "old coot."

Council rescinds

week to week," Lake said. "I thought a systematic changing of the guard was more fair," he added. It was Lake who authored the original proposal which he, Burns and Legerton voted for at the May 18 meeting.

Burns echoed Lake's concerns, stating that "we should leave it alone."

"It's only going to be in place until June 1994 anyway," he added, alluding to council's decision several months ago to let voters decide through a ballot measure if they prefer electing the city's mayor rather than having council members make the decision.

Burns also expressed concern that if the council was willing to rescind a resolution it just passed, it might be prone to reversing other decisions, such as putting the mayoral question on the June ballot.

"I'll tell you straight out, I will never vote to take the issue off the June '94 ballot," Cochran said.

Though the replacement resolution does not outline by what criteria a council will select its mayor, it forbids council members from serving more than one mayoral term within a six-year period, unless another council member declines the office. However, in no case shall a council member serve consecutive terms as mayor.

Atlas United player gets 'lesson' from Pele

World-renowned Pele watches as Robert Morales practices "juggling."

A once-in-a-lifetime chance to work with the famous Pele was realized by Atlas United player, Robert Morales, as the international celebrity was in Southern California to promote the Children's Miracle Network telethon being broadcast on June 5 - 6.

Nine-year-old Morales, a resident of Spring Valley who attends St. John of the Cross School in Lemon Grove, had the opportunity to get a lesson from the former superstar of soccer when Morales visited the U.S. National Team training camp in Mission Viejo recently.

Pele and national team goalkeeper Tony Meola, defender Desmond Armstrong and midfielder Chris Henderson are part of a training video which will be an incentive for pledging on the CMN telethon.

A Mastercard spokesman said that the credit card, which is a national sponsor for CMN, developed the video which features the first instructional video Pele, World Cup spokesman for Mastercard, has done in almost two decades.

The 1992 CMN telethon reportedly raised more than $100 million for children's hospitals nationwide.

Piano-playing course offered

"Piano for the fun of it!," a workshop for piano beginners and dropouts is set for June at Grossmont College.

Is your child missing the fun because he can't see well?

If your child spends more time on the sidelines than on the playing field, perhaps he has an undetected vision problem.

Or maybe he tries hard but doesn't succeed because he has poor depth perception or limited eye movement skills.

Your son (or daughter) may be among an estimated six million young persons in America whose enjoyment of athletics is limited because of visual deficiencies.

We specialize in children's vision and we are committed to working with young athletes. If you want to find out more about your child's visual abilities and ways to improve them, give us a call and schedule a complimentary sports vision screening and receive a free brochure about sports vision.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF HENRY WILBUR DURANT aka HENRY W. DURANT
CASE NO. 159866

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of: HENRY WILBUR DURANT, also known as HENRY W. DURANT
A PETITION has been filed by RUBIE F. TURNER in the Superior Court of California, County of SAN DIEGO.
THE PETITION requests that RUBIE F. TURNER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on JUN 14, 1993 at 1:45 p.m. in Dept. F5, located at: Probate Building, 1501-55 Sixth Avenue, San Diego, CA 92101
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Two Lemon Grove Girl Scouts shine like gold

Rebecca Doherty

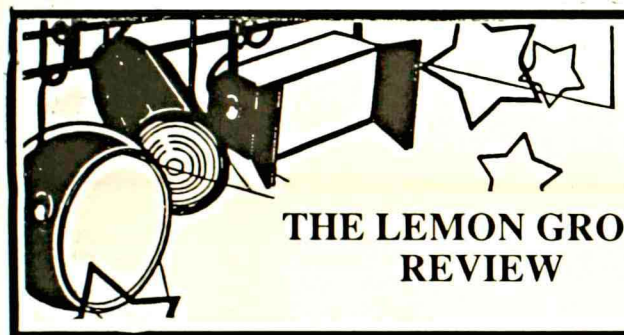

Roekmini Harris

Two young women from Lemon Grove received Girl Scouting's highest recognition, the Gold Award, in a ceremony held May 16.

To earn the Girl Scout Gold Award a girl must demonstrate a commitment to herself, her community, the world and the future. To complete the requirements for this award, each girl develops and implements her own Gold Award project. This project requires 4 to 12 months to complete, and must demonstrate a commitment to the future and address a specific need in the community.

Honored with the Gold Award this year are: Rebecca Doherty, Troop 6419 and Roekmini Harris, Troop 6222, seniors at Mt. Miguel High School. Doherty is an honor student, managing editor of her school newspaper, and a member of the California Scholastic Federation. As part of her gold award project, Doherty created a video on Girl Scouting to be used by the leaders in her area as a recruitment vehicle during re-registration periods. Additionally, she created a program to encourage younger girls to stay in Girl Scouts. She will pursue her interest in film at Emerson College this fall.

Harris belongs to the California Scholarship Federation and is a recipient of The Price Scholar. For her Gold. Award project, Harris founded and was president of a "student action" club at her high school. The club's goal was to provide an outlet for students to express their opinions on current issues, especially human rights and environmental, to political leaders in the U.S. and abroad.
